About the Band

Jupiter Vinyl is an indie, folk-pop duo made up of Corinne Bohjanen (lead vocals, harmonies, electric bass) and Ed Horey (lead vocals, acoustic guitar). Splitting their time between Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and Marquette, Michigan, the pair craft a sound that blends heartfelt storytelling with playful grooves and rich harmonies.

Their music lives where classic country warmth, folk intimacy, and a touch of vintage swing meet. With acoustic textures, melodic bass lines, and intertwining voices, Jupiter Vinyl creates an atmosphere that feels both nostalgic and fresh—perfect for quiet listening rooms, lively street festivals, and everything in between.

The Story

Jupiter Vinyl began as two voices chasing the same melody. Ed and Corinne discovered their natural blend while learning cover songs, and soon it became clear that their collaboration was more than just a pastime—it was a sound worth sharing. The name “Jupiter Vinyl” reflects their love for timeless music: something vast and celestial, yet grounded in the crackle of a well-loved record.

Press Quotes

“Corinne Bohjanen has a voice which at times reminds you of Sandy Denny, and if that is not among the highest compliments which can be paid to a female vocalist then I don't know what is.” -Charles Martel, Music Emissions
